DESIGNED BY TEENS, FOR TEENS

TLC 2006 has been designed by teens, for teens. It is our 60th South Dakota 4-H leadership conference, held in Brookings June 6–9, 2006.

This year's theme, "Where Everybody Knows Your Name," highlights the commitment of the 4-H Council and the SDSU Cooperative Extension Service to helping you connect and make friends. You will find a great balance between leadership training, fun, and personal growth and have the opportunity to build life-long friendships.

At TLC 2006 you can choose from 75 different workshops highlighting leadership training, healthy lifestyles, career exploration, and service opportunities. There will be plenty of hands-on activities.

TLC has not forgotten fun and friendship. A bowling and karaoke night will encourage everyone to get acquainted in a relaxed atmosphere. Each day you can choose from a variety of free-time activities such as swimming, volleyball, a visit to the campus bookstore, even an inflatable obstacle course sponsored by the Army National Guard! In the evenings, you can attend the sponsored dance or relax at the dorm where a variety of games, movies, and activities will be hosted.

TLC will cost $125 if registration is postmarked by May 10th. After the early bird deadline, the registration fee increases to $150. Registration covers the conference fees, room, and board. Transportation to and from Brookings is not covered, though group transportation is available for West River youth at a nominal fee. Complete workshop descriptions and registration materials are available after March 1st.

4-H members are eligible for a 4-H Leader's Association scholarship of $50 if they conduct a local program using TLC materials upon their return home. Twenty-five $100 scholarships are available to youth with a parent in the Army or Air National Guard or the Army Reserve who is actively deployed. Teens whose parent has been deployed within the past 12–18 months may also be eligible for scholarship funds.
